Alfonzo is about 40 years old and has lived in Thailand for his entire life. People often ask him why his name doesn't sound like other people's in Thailand. He must always explain, with a laugh, that one of his parents is from the West and married a woman from Thailand long ago on a two-year missionary trip. Although he doesn't look Thai, he can speak the language fluently, and not many people realize that he isn't 100% Thai, as he looks almost the same as other people in the country. He gets questions about his name all the time but doesn't let it bother him too much.

- ___1. Alfonzo is... A) a boy B) a young man C) a middle-aged man D) an old man E) not Thai
- ___2. When people ask Alfonzo about his name, he is... A) angry B) annoyed C) sad D) amused E) extremely happy
- ___3. Alfonzo's ___ is from Thailand. A) name B) mother C) father D) missionary E) laugh
- ___4. Although one of his parents isn't from Thailand, he speaks Thai... A) poorly B) okay C) well D) like an American E) just like Thai people
- ___5. The "Westerner" on a "missionary trip" was not... A) related to Alfonzo B) spreading religion C) visiting for a short time D) married to a local person E) 100% Thai

The People's Republic of China ratified the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC) in 1992. Its most serious concern since then has been which of its central goals have been realized, and which remain to be achieved. More practically, how should the PRC go about implementing these rights? In the past 20 years China's macro-economy has grown quickly, but due to preferential policies of the central government, the majority of the benefits from economic advancement have consistently and disproportionately gone to coastal cities in the East. Meanwhile China's neediest citizens--its farmers and rural residents, migrant workers, women and minorities--by contrast, have actually seen their rights and current living conditions stagnate or even worsen. This has especially affected children and their access to health care, education, shelter, and other basic needs of which no child should be deprived.

- ___1. This text is mostly about... A) the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child B) Economics C) farmers and rural residents, migrant workers, women and minorities D) children's rights in China E) achieving goals of the central government
- ___2. Who has received "preferential policies"? A) farmers and rural residents B) urban and coastal citizens C) children D) deprived E) no child
- ___3. What happened in 1992? A) China passed the UNCRC B) Rights and living conditions have stagnated C) Children's rights have been achieved D) Migrant workers became needy. E) China's macro-economy started to grow.
- ___4. Who has been deprived of "basic needs"? A) the central government B) the People's Republic of China C) coastal cities in the East D) children of minorities E) the UNCRC

___5. Which is not a basic need? A) affected B) health care C) “Rights of the Child” D) shelter
E) education
